Applicant's election of Group I, claims 1-39 and 87-113 in the reply filed on 8/30/04 is acknowledged. Because applicant did not distinctly and specifically point out the supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election has been treated as an election without traverse (MPEP § 818.03(a)). Applicants are also respectfully requested to "cancel" their non-elected or withdrawn claims in their next response which they reserve to file continuing/divisional applications for a at a later time.

35 USC 112 Second Paragraph:

Claims 1-39 and 87-113 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as failing to set forth the subject matter which applicant(s) regard as their invention.

Claims 1 and 87 are indefinite because applicants do not particularly point out and distinctly claim what they mean by particle size distribution adjusting agent. It is the examiner's position that it would appear this should be at the very least a cationic polymer yet it is not in any of applicants' independent claims. The claimed particle size distribution adjusting agent, it is noted, can merely read upon water or other material.

Claims 1 and 87 may also potentially be considered indefinite because applicants do not provide the critical amounts of each component in their independent claim for their invention.

The term "high alkalinity" (reference to cement) is vague in claim 5 and 91. Is this a term well known in the art and what cements are considered high alkalinity cements?

The term "high" density particles in claim 7 and any other claim it appears is vague, relative, and indefinite. What do applicants mean by "high"? Please be specific and provide an exact range of density that applicants categorize as high.

Art Unit: 1755

The term "desired" is indefinite in claims 1, 28, 105, 107 and any other claim it is used. Deletion of this term is advised.

Removal of the colon in claim 37 and 109 is advised.

The term "selectively" activating is indefinite in claim 39 and any other claim it is used. How do applicants "selectively" activate? Please be specific.

35 USC 102/103

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-39 and 87-113 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a and b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Laramay et al. '318, Abelleira et al. '147 B1, Yamashita et al. '418, Cowan '711 or '654 or '070.

All of the above cited references teach compositions comprising hydraulic cement, retarder, water, and cationic surfactant that are mixed together thus anticipating the applicants' claimed method (of merely mixing components and placing at a desired location) and product. Even if not anticipated, overlapping ranges of amounts would have been prima facie obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art. Further, the extra additives added to the instantly claimed composition are conventional additives whose addition are known and conventional and their usage would have been an obvious design choice for one of ordinary skill in the art.

Obviousness Type Double Patenting:

Claims 1-39 and 87-113 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-13 of U.S. Patent No. 6,796,378 B2 (Reddy et al.). Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because both teach a composition and method comprising mixing a cationic polymer (cationic derivatized starch), calcium aluminate (cement), water, and the use of a retarder (col.2, line 46).

Reddy et al. do not teach placing at a "desired" location yet one of ordinary skill in the art would have understood cementing can be done at their own place of choosing.

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).
